Evaluation Report

General Comments	In this article which discusses medical crime in general, it does not provide a concrete definition related to medical crime. This is important, to see your country's perspective on medical crime. This section seems to be prepared as a background study but it also requires a rationale why this study is undertaken. The author is advised to include a theoretical and empirical discussions, definitions, and based on that, a set of the research objectives/hypotheses etc. This is lacking in this section. I'd suggest breaking this introduction into two parts: background information and problems statement/ research objectives. This would help with finding space to explain the rationale of this research and also to discuss some definitions/ problems in order to make a stronger rationale for this research.
Advantage & Disadvantage	The following section lists and provides an overview of previous research related to medical crime, to show the novelty of your article. This section may be used as a literature review. The author is advised to revise this section and add a few empirical/ field studies, besides highlighting the relevant Acts/ regulations of Indonesia and other countries.
How to improve	This section should be followed by methodology section. This section should more specific information about research design, and data collection/analysis methods. It's still unclear how and where from the author collected the data for this research. The author may also add a theoretical framework based on the previous studies. This framework will explain the structure of the current research
